Four tips for a winning marriage proposal You may now KISS THE BRIDE

1. Think about your personality
If you or your partner are shy, a public proposal with lots of people watching might not be the best idea. Instead, choose an intimate moment. For example, in the comfort of your home, while taking a walk or during a romantic picnic. If you don't want it to be overly private, consider including a few of your closest friends to make it a memorable event.

2. Plan your proposal
Ideally, choose a moment when you won't be too pressed for time to avoid another stress. While many venues have a sunset ideal time to propose, it's in your best interest not to rush it.

3. Pay attention to your presentation
Even if an engagement ring isn't essential to you, the moment of presentation is the heart and soul of the marriage proposal. Choose the ring carefully, subtly taking note of your partner's tastes while passing a jewelry shop window, for example.

4. Consider the element of surprise
Even if you and your partner frequently talk about marriage, the element of surprise is key to a memorable proposal. Make your plans discreetly and be sure that the loved ones you want to help keep the secret safe.

Start exploring your area to find the perfect ring and plan the perfect place and time for your marriage proposal.

Four perfect locations to hold your wedding

Are you looking for a wedding venue that reflects your spirit as a couple? Here are four venue ideas that may inspire you, but in your absolute nearest and dearest. However, the fresh air and beautiful views will ensure your intimate wedding day is truly memorable.

1. Yacht Space locations may force you to limit your guest list to your absolute nearest and dearest. However, the fresh air and beautiful views will ensure your intimate wedding day is truly memorable.

2. Public building The stunning architecture of older buildings lends itself well to the decor of a wedding. Imagine a couple of book lovers getting married in a sturdy library or a pair of art lovers tying the knot in the gallery where they had their first date.

3. Converted industrial building Many old factories and warehouses have been given new lives as event spaces. Although you may need to spend more on decorations to offset the industrial backdrop, the trendy surroundings will give your celebration playful energy.

4. Vineyard or brewery Are you particularly fond of a local brewer or vintner? A romantic vineyard is perfect for a sophisticated celebration. Or with a casual brewery space for a laid-back vibe.
